NATIVE AMERICAN AND INDIGENOUS STUDIES

ASSOCIATION

Annual Meetings
Welcome to the Sixth Annual Meeting of NAISA!

Whether you are a first-time attendee or a conference regular, you have chosen an exciting time to participate in the Native American and Indigenous Studies Association. As we gather in the great city of Austin, hosted by our colleagues at the University of Texas, NAISA celebrates a number of significant milestones.

Last year’s annual meeting, held in beautiful Saskatoon, Saskatchewan, broke records for paper and panel submissions as well as for attendance—but NAISA has continued to grow in 2014, and we will set new submissions and attendance records this year. And just as the Saskatoon meeting increased the number of scholars, students, and community members participating from Canada, this year’s location in Austin will increase the number of scholars, students, and community members joining us from the U.S. Southwest and from Abya Yala. The inclusion of greater numbers of people from Latin America is a direct result of important efforts made over the past several years by NAISA’s Abya Yala Working Group. Moreover, our diversity continues to develop in many directions, with ongoing and increasing participation from Oceania, Australia, Europe, Asia, and Africa.

In addition, we have now fully migrated and upgraded NAISA’s presence on the web—a huge effort led by past-President Tsianina Lomawaima and Secretary David Chang. And less than a month ago, NAISA welcomed the inaugural issue of its new international scholarly journal, NAIS, co-edited by past NAISA Presidents Robert Warrior and Jean O’Brien and published by University of Minnesota Press.

On behalf of the NAISA Council, I want to recognize the incredible work of our local host committee at the University of Texas; not only have they made the 2014 conference a reality but a bright success. A special thanks is extended to Shannon Speed, Jim Cox, and their team of dedicated colleagues and graduate students, as well as to their local and Texas-based partners, including Great Promise for Native Americans, the Indigenous Cultures Institute, the Alabama-Coushatta Tribe, the Tiguas of Ysleta del Sur Pueblo, the N’del Lipan Apache, the Jumano Apache, and the Miakan-Garza Band of the Coahuiltecans. I also want to thank the Chickasaw Nation and the Comanche Nation ethno-ornithologists of SIA for their involvement and support.

Enjoy the NAISA meeting with its broad range of multidisciplinary panels and special events, and enjoy the sights, sounds, and amazing food offerings of Austin. Be sure to join us for the NAISA Business Meeting and hosted receptions, and be on the lookout for members of our Nominations Committee, who will be asking for your recommendations for next year’s ballot. And, finally, please mark your calendars for NAISA 2015, when we will gather June 4-6 to continue the conversation in Washington, DC.

Chadwick Allen
NAISA President 2013-2014
On behalf of Native American and Indigenous Studies (NAIS) at the University of Texas at Austin and all the sponsors, host committee members, and volunteers listed in the following pages, we welcome you to the 2014 Native American and Indigenous Studies Association annual meeting.

NAIS was founded in the fall of 2006 by James H. Cox, Loriene Roy, Pauline Turner Strong, Shannon Speed, and Gerald Torres with the goal of encouraging an active intellectual and community engagement with Indigenous people and cultures on the UT campus. With 45 affiliated faculty, we have nationally and internationally known specialists in many areas of Native American and Indigenous Studies, including anthropology, archaeology, art history, education, history, information studies, law, linguistics, and literature. Our program thrives in the borderlands between the U.S. and Latin America and is built on the strength of our many Mexican Americanists and Latin Americanists who work in Indigenous studies. To increase the cohesion of an already active program of teaching and research, the Founding Envisioning Committee created an MA and PhD portfolio program in the fall of 2007, and we added an undergraduate certificate program in 2009. These academic programs are complemented by a speaker series, an annual spring celebration of our students, projects with student and community groups, and summer research fellowships for undergraduate and graduate students.

Certain sponsors deserve special recognition for their exceptional support of NAIS at UT and the NAISA conference. We would like to thank the Office of the President; the College of Liberal Arts, especially Senior Associate Dean Richard Flores; and the Center for Mexican American Studies, especially Director Domino R. Perez and Associate Director Nicole M. GuidottiHernández. Texas A&M University is also a co-sponsor of the conference, and we thank them as well as Southern Methodist University for their support.

We would also like to take this opportunity to thank some community members and special guests. The people of Great Promise for American Indians, especially Lois Duncan, Sandy Duncan, and Lee Walters, have long anchored the American Indian community in Austin and central Texas. The Indigenous Cultures Institute has been educating people for decades about Texas sacred sites and Latino-Native American identity in the region. Special thanks to the Chickasaw Nation, especially Lt. Governor Keel, and the Comanche Nation Ethno-Ornithological Initiative for your support of and participation in the opening ceremony. We also extend our gratitude to the Alabama-Coushatta Tribe, the Tiguas of Ysleta del Sur Pueblo, the N’de Lipan Apache, and Miakan Garza Band of the Coahuiltecs for their participation.

We are pleased to welcome you to historically and culturally rich Austin, Texas, and look forward to the conference as an opportunity to honor the many Indigenous peoples who have called this area home for many thousands of years.

Visit Aboriginal Studies Press at NAISA 2014

Aboriginal Studies Press, Australia's leading Indigenous Studies publisher, invites you to visit our stand to talk to us about our books and yours, or your teaching needs. In particular we invite publishers of Australian authors/subjects or comparative works. This is our first visit to NAISA and we're keen to meet as many people as possible.

We publish both print and ebooks in a range of academic disciplines as well as autobiography and community histories. We choose outstanding writing in its fields, and several of our books are award-winners. Our best-selling titles in the US are in the areas of archaeology, autobiography, history, reference, sport and constitutional change.

Aboriginal Studies Press is the publishing arm of the Australian Institute of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Studies (AIATSIS), an organisation that reflects the changing values in Australia's society, the evolution of ethical Australian research, and the burgeoning multidisciplinary field of Australian Indigenous Studies.

"We understand ourselves through places like AIATSIS. We can look to the past to find our way."
— Warta Jampijinpa Pawa-Kurlpururnu [Steve Jampijinpa Patrick], Lajamanu, NT

Now celebrating its 50th year, AIATSIS stands as a symbol of Australia's maturing nationhood and respect for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people as the first peoples of the land. Our vast Australian Indigenous Languages collection is inscribed on the UNESCO's Memory of the World register.

Can ancient ways transform higher education?

Over 10,000 years, Alaska's Native peoples perfected teaching and learning practices that ensured the survival of their communities. These ancient approaches offer fresh insights into our place in the world and demonstrate strategies to make education more engaging to a wider range of students and more relevant to the challenge of global survival.

From the same team that created Start Talking: A Handbook for Engaging Difficult Dialogues in Higher Education, Stop Talking includes reflections on education from Alaska Native Elders, strategies for applying indigenous pedagogies in western learning environments, and reports from non-indigenous faculty who've tried these approaches in their classrooms. It brings new voices about best practices and transformative experiences in higher education.

Best of all – it's free.

A limited number of free hard copies will be available at the conference.
Or contact john.dede@uaa.alaska.edu for free single copies.

The book can also be downloaded free of charge at UAA's Difficult Dialogues website http://www.difficultdialoguesuaa.org/index.php/handbook/landing

Indigenous Postgraduate Research Award (IPRA)

The National Indigenous Research and Knowledges Network (NIRAKN) will fund an Indigenous Post Graduate Scholarship to an International Indigenous scholar to commence their Higher Degree Research between August and December 2014 at the Queensland University of Technology (QUT), Brisbane Queensland Australia. The purpose of the scholarship is to provide the applicant with an opportunity to immerse themselves in their chosen field of study in a globally recognised top 50 University, create linkages with Indigenous Australian Scholars, organisations and communities and access a suite of capacity building programs established by NIRAKN until 2016.

What you receive
As an International student you’ll receive:

- A living allowance, indexed annually ($AUD25,392.00 in 2014). The scholarship is tax exempt for full-time students, and is to support living costs for up to 3 years for doctoral students.
- accompanying QUT Higher Degree Research Tuition Fee Sponsorship.

Your scholarship will end when you submit your thesis, or at the end of the award’s tenure whichever comes first.

You can also apply for:

- a $AUD1,520.00 relocation allowance

For more information please visit:
Adam Robinson at the National Indigenous Research and Knowledges Network (NIRAKN) exhibition booth NAISA Conference Downtown Hilton Hotel, Austin Texas or email aj.robinson@qut.edu.au

The International Journal of Critical Indigenous Studies is a fully refereed international journal published twice each year.

Indigenous peoples from around the world share common experiences of colonisation and have been involved in the struggle for self-determination at the global level. Our collective politics have been shaped by our intellectual traditions which inform our work within the academy.

The International Journal of Critical Indigenous Studies offers a virtual intellectual space for the dissemination of international scholarship from scholars across disciplines that include the Humanities, Social Sciences, Health Sciences, Law and Education in the field of Indigenous Studies. As Critical Indigenous studies is a multidisciplinary and interdisciplinary field we are seeking articles, review essays and book reviews from a variety of disciplines related to but not exclusive of the following topics:

- Indigenous sovereignty and colonisation
- Indigenous people and the environment
- Indigenous politics and rights
- Indigenous people and the law
- Indigenous people and racism
- Indigenous people and new technologies
- Indigenous visual art and performance
- Indigenous people and media
- Indigenous methodologies and research
- Indigenous cultures, heritage and repatriation
- Indigenous science

Ethnohistoire

This quarterly publication offers analyses and interpretations that seek to make evident the experience, organization, and identities of indigenous, diasporic, and minority peoples. We focus on perspectives that otherwise elude the histories and anthropologies of nations, states, and colonial empires.

Don’t miss this recent issue:

Governmentality and Hybridity in Northwestern North America:
From Russian Colonization to the Present (volume 60, issue 3)
Steve J. Langdon and Sergei Kan, special issue editors

This collection of essays on Russian and American Alaska focuses on two topics of central interest to ethnohistorians: the rise of a Creole population and the establishment of political, legal, and discursive regimes through the agency of the nation-state.
L’Institut d’études canadiennes et autochtones met des locaux à la disposition de chercheurs intéressés à faire un stage de recherche sur le Canada ou les autochtones dans la capitale nationale. Ce programme s’adresse plus particulièrement aux professeurs en congé sabbatique et à quiconque ayant reçu des subventions pour faire des recherches en études canadiennes ou autochtones ou encore qui préparent du matériel didactique sur le Canada. Les stages durent généralement de deux semaines à six mois.

AVANTAGES :
Situé près de Bibliothèque et Archives Canada et de plusieurs musées • Affiliation universitaire et privilèges d’accès à la bibliothèque • Équipement informatique, soutien technique, Wi-Fi et espace de travail

Pour faire la demande, veuillez remplir le formulaire en ligne
(www.canada.uOttawa.ca/fra/inscription.php) et le soumettre à l’Institut.

The Institute of Canadian and Aboriginal Studies provides research visitorships to scholars who wish to come to Ottawa to work on Canadian or Aboriginal-related projects. The visitorships are designed for sabbaticants and those holding research grants in Canadian or Aboriginal Studies or for those who want to produce teaching tools on Canada. They range from 2 to 6 weeks.

BENEFITS:
Location-near the National Archives, the National Library and an array of museums • University affiliation and library privileges • Computing facilities, technical support, Wi-Fi and work space

To apply please complete the online form (www.canada.uOttawa.ca/eng-registration.php) and submit it to the Institute.
